THE IRISH QUESTION PRESSES.

KINGS FEAR TO VISIT DUBLIN SHOWS NEED OF ACTION.

Earl Cadegan to Present the Case to the ritish Cabinet This Week - Crimes Act of 1897 May Be Put in Full Operation Against the United Irlah League

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, March 8 - Reluctant, as it probably is to do so, the Government is likely soon to turn its attention to the disturbed condition of Ireland. Earl Cadogan, the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, will attend the Cabinet meeting next Tuesday with the purpose, as is generally understood, of placing the facts of the case before his colleagues.

The first thing with which the Government will have to deal if it puts the Crimes oct of 1887 into full operation will be the United Irish League, founded by William O'Brien The league is now established n counties where two years ago it had no foothold. The Judges at the Assizes have been making increasingly frequent remarks regarding organized lawlessness, and lately the Irish Executive Government has stirred itself to prosecute some of the worst offenders under the summary jurisdiction clauses of the Crimes act, including a Nationalist member of Parliament who on conviction was removed from the commission of the peace by the Lord Chancellor

It is no doubt owing to the disturbed condition of the country and the strength and activity of the United Irish League that the King and Queen have been obliged to postpone their visit to Ireland, which was fixed for next month. It was a significant little sign that as soon as the date of the visit was arranged the Nationalists fixed the day of the King's reception in Dublin for the presentation of the free dom of the city to one of the most notorious of their members.

The Times in a long editorial loudly calls on the Government to take vigorous and effective action immediately. It says that it has every reason to believe that Lord Cadogan is not content any longer to keep widest powers conferred on him by the Crimes act in abeyance, especially the proclamation of the United Irish League as a dangerous association.

Mr. Gerald Balfour, when he was Chief Secretary for Ireland, made light of the necessity for making a stand against the progress of the league. Mr. George Wyndham, when he succeeded to that office, denounced, but, at the Times complains, shrunk from grappling with the league. No one who has followed Irish politics needs to be told why the Government naturally shrinks from taking up an active Irish campaign. But when the King cannot visit a part of his kingdom only a few hours distant from his capital, it seems likely that some attempt will be made to grapple with the awkward problem

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.
LONDON, March 8.—Much interest was taken in the sale at Christie's auction rooms to-day of the Battle Abbey heirlooms, formerly the property of the late Duke of Cleveland. To-day's sale of pictures had for its most notable item a view of a Dutch château by Jan van der Heyden, the figures and dogs by Adrian van der Ve'de, these latter presenting difficulties of draughtsmanship which Van der Heyden never completely mastered; so the two painted in partnership. It was a canvas eighteen by twenty-three inches, and it fetched 2,300 guineas. Gainsborough's large portrait of Quin. the actor, went for 410 guineas. Sir Thomas Lawrence's portrait of Jean Babington, the aunt of Macaulay, was sold for 400 guineas, which was the price paid for Tenier's "Le Roi Boit." Three Dutch Boers, one of them raising up his glass, was sold for 400 guineas.

between these and the prices paid for modern paintings. G. F. Watts's fine portrait of the fourth Duke of Cleveland was sold for 95 guineas, and Alma-Tadema's portrait of Catherine, Duchess of Cleveland, for 125 guineas. The cheapest item was superbly painted half-length negress by Goya, which brought only 48 guineas.

ITALIAN CRISIS TO-MORROW. Fate of the Cabinet to Be Decided - Rail way Strike May Be Declared.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, March 8 .- The grave situation in Italy reaches a critical point on Monday That is the postponed date for the general railway strike and also for the decision of the fate of the Government in the Chamber of Deputies

It was the Government's weakness in allowing Socialist propaganda to become practically revolutionary in the past two ears, which precipated the double crisis. The authorities did not interfere with small strikes, but when a general railway strike was ordered the Government prepared block the revolutionists' plans. Hence the withdrawal of the Socialist support in the Chamber and the defeat of the Ministry on the choice of a President for that to a vote on Monday, and without Socialist support the Cabinet must finally retire. No compromise has yet been arranged. Grave fears of disturbances in the principal cities are entertained, and it is evident that the kingly qualities of the young monarch are about to be put to a severe test. The responsibility for dealing with the situation will probably fall directly on his shoulders.

ALTGELD TALKS IN BUFFALO. He Favors Consolidation, but Says the

People Should Own the Monopolles. BUFFALO, March 8 .- John P. Altgeld delivered a speech this evening at a banquet of the Independent Club. "Shall the people own the monopolies?" He said that we live in an era of consolidation and concentration-"little things to great things, little shops to great shops, little ships to great ships, little railroads to great railroads." The result of this consolidation in itself, he said, should be beneficial, as it cheapens the cost of production, and in the railway world it greatly increases the convenience of the public.

It is apparent that these conditions are It is apparent that these conditions are permanent, and it is also obvious that we would not change them if we could. We do not want to do away with the big ships and go back to the little ships, to do away with the big stores and go back to the little stores, to do away with the great trunk lines traversing a continent and go back to the little constituent roads that were consolidated. These consolidations are beneficial to mankind, if properly managed, but they have completely wiped out competition in certain fields and established monopolies, and from the very nature of the case these monopolies will be permanent.

wiped out competion in the status and stature of the case these monopolies will be permanent.

We say that so far as the principle or theory is concerned the people themselves should own these monopolies. Wipe out private monopolies and you will wipe out the corrupt lobbies at the seats of government; you will restore the people to power, the government will again become an engine of justice and a shield for the protection of the weak.

I hear men talk about Jeffersonian principles. I read accounts of harmony meetings in which it is proposed that we Democrats shall all get together, and when I look for the reason for getting together, I find it summed up in the desire to get something. They tell us we must win, I ask why do we want to win? Then I am told that we want to win? Then I am told that we want to win? Then I am told that we want the offices? The answer is, so that we can take care of our friends.

Now there is nothing in this programme that is worthy of the effort or even of the attention of an American freeman, and if there is nothing better or higher in prospect for our country than what is offered by these harmony meetings, then, my friends, our career is over and there is nothing left for us except to lay a wreath on the grave of republican institutions and shed a tear over the fall of freadom.

If there were no other reason why the people should own the monopolies than that it will give them back their government, that reason is in itself sufficient. Wipe out the private monopolies and it will again be possible for the popular will to make itself felt in city councils, in State legislatures, in the National Government and in party conventions. It will restore American character and American manhood. It will restore the great principles of truth, of liberty, and of justice, and man will again look to the stars and labor for the elevation of the race.

BRITAIN NOW HAS AUTO CRAZE

MORE LIBERAL ROAD LAWS ARE DEMANDED.

Present Limit of Twelve Miles an Hour Considered Unjust -- Demand for Machines Far Exceeds the Supply - Double Prices for Those Delivered at Once.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, March 8 .- For a long time partly owing to absurd restrictive legislation and partly to British conservatism, automobiling failed to catch on here. Now it is the most fashionable craze of the day. So great is the demand for automobiles that the supply is utterly unable to cope with it. If a new machine is wanted promptly the customer has to pay at least twice the listed price, otherwise he must wait for six or eight weeks.

Automobile clubs are now established all over the United Kingdom, mostly in affliation with the Central Automobile Club of Great Britain and Ireland. The General Council of the latter includes such influential men as the Duke of Sutherland, the Earl of Onslow, Earl Grey and Gen. Sir Redvers Buller. It is now agitating for the removal of the restrictions placed on motor vehicles by the act of 1896, which removed earlier absurd regulations, such as that no mechanical vehicle should proceed along the public road at a speed of more than four miles an hour and that each one must be preceded by a man with a red

In a long letter addressed to the press and signed by the Presidents of the councils of the French, Swiss, Belgian and Austrian automobile clubs, and also by all the chief British automobilists, cogent reasons are put forward for an amendment of the act which prevents an automobile being worked at a speed of more than twelve miles an hour, even on a straight road free from traffic. The protest points out that the systematic prosecutions and heavy fines imposed for constant breaches of this law are damaging an industry whose importance can be inferred rom the fact that in October last, probably the quietest month in the year, $227,205 left the country for France, Germany and the United States for the purchase of

They demand that the statutory limit on speed be abolished and replaced by reasonable restrictions proper for safety. They also call for the removal of oppressive restrictions on road locomotives for the conveyance of heavy goods, which at present are restricted to a tare weight not exceeding three tons, thus virtually prohibiting the use of wagons which could carry ten or railways, though they can be had for onethird of the cost of horse haulage.

General sympathy has been expressed for the automobilists on both points.

KLUMP HELD FOR MURDER. Accused of Giving His Wife Poison for

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 8 .- William Klump was arrested and put in jail here yesterday on the charge of murdering his wife by means of a sample "headache powder which was sent through the mail The woman died at her home in Lowell. Mich., last Sunday. Sheriff Chapman says that he has discovered that Klump is in love with another woman

Chapman asserts that this woman had recently received a divorce from her husband at the same time that Klump obtained a divorce from his first wife. The pair were to have been married then, but Klump met the woman who became his second wife, and after a courtship of only a couple of weeks, married her. Then, it is asserted, he tired of her and again corresponded with the woman for whose sake he had obtained a divorce from his first wife.

The general theory is that Klump secured the drugs and that the pair concocted the plot between them. It is thought that the woman must have sent the poison, contained the powder is that of a woman and radically distinct from that of Klump and that Klump posted the package in his home town, for it bore the Lowell postmark.

Klump's testimony to-day before the Coroner's jury was to the effect that he had received the envelope in the mail on Thursday, Feb. 26. The letter was addressed to his wife. On Sunday, he said, his wife made a laughing remark to him. He says he told her that she was not looking well, to which she replied that she had a headache and that she thought she would try the sample powders. She took one and a short time later went into convulsions. She died at 10 o'clock the night of strychnine poisoning.

Mrs. Miller, aged 68 years, living across the street, from Klump's house, received a similar sample package the day before Mrs. Klump received her letter and this, like the remaining powder in the Klump envelope, was found to consist half of strychning. strychnine. Klump denies that there is another woman in the case.

oken-Down Speculator Kills Himse Just Before & Remittance Comes. CHICAGO, March 8 .- Henry C. Crandall, once a prosperous business man of Pasadena, Cal., was found dead yesterday by the police in a room at 49 Curtis street In his hand was a note addressed to his nephew, Chester D. Crandall: "Please forgive me for my act, but I thought it best, and see that I am not buried in Potter's Field." A few minutes before he was found dead a letter for him was delivered at his boarding house containing a check. Crandall was twelve tons into districts not served by a stock speculator. His wealth was swept away, but he clung tenaciously to the gambler's chance until he became destitute. His nephew, Ches er D. Crandall, is manager of the Western Electric Company. During the last four months Crandall had been receiving remittances from relatives in Pasadena, and yesterday morning he called Mrs. Henrietta Dodge, at whose house he was boarding, and told her that he feared that the check of $100 from California which he expected would not arrive.

"If the money does not come this morning I am ruined," said Crandell and he went to his room in tears. In the afternoon mail delivery a postman In the alternoon mail delivery a postman called with a letter for Crandall and it was marked Pasadena. Mrs. Dodge took the letter and rushing upstairs knocked on Crandall's door. He did not answer the knock and she opened the door. She found him dead. SOME HAZING GOOD FOR BOYS. Prof. Kent of Yale Says He Thinks It

NEW HAVEN, March 8.- In discussing the story of Joseph one day this week Prof. Charles F. Kent, Woolsey professor of Biblical literature at Yale, said that Joseph was rather a fresh young person and that the hazing which Joseph's brothers gave him resulted in good, for it brought out what was strong and good in him. Joseph was the better for it. Then Prof. Kent, in reviewing his own college days and experiences, said that most of the graduates looked back on their hazing days as a kind of happy memory. he said he thought hazing of a moderate kind was a good thing. It takes the freshness out of the college lad, he said, and generally results in developing the manly, strong side of the fresh young men. strong side of the fresh young man.

"I don't believe in brutal hazing," Prof Kent concluded, "but in what might be termed light hazing."

EXTRADITION TREATY TO EX-PIRE ON APRIL 24.

Report That He Had Converted His Property Into Cash and Had Been in Conference With Nicaragua Men-Notice of Abrogation of Treaty Given Last Fall

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 8 .- The disappearance of D. B. Greene and John F. Gaynor, accused of conspiracy in the O. M. Carter frauds and now fugitives from justice, for whom bench warrants have been issued in the United States Court, has aroused intense interest here. "What's the news from Greene and Gaynor?" is the query on all sides, and the next question is: "Where have they gone?" There are some who think they have not even left the United States yet, but the general belief is that they have gone to Nicaragua. A few months ago one who has watched this case from the beginning gave to THE Sun reporter an interview in which he

"There have been some significant happenings during the past few months. I hear that Messrs. Greene and Gaynor have been changing their securities into cash and have again exchanged this cash into notes of large denominations. They want no letters of credit.
"Of course, should they forfeit their bonds it is urged that they could not escape because there is no place safe from extradition treaty except possibly Honduras, which might not be sporty enough Honduras, which might not be sporty enough for the Colonel and the Captain. But these men have not been idle during the past year. The announcement from the Nica-raguan Minister that his country had nullified the extradition treaty with the United States was of peculiar significance, taken in connection with the fact that on the same day notice was also given that taken in connection with the fact that on the same day notice was also given that the concession to build an interoceanic canal had expired more than a year ago.

"During the last year men from Nicaragua have arrived at New York on the Atlas Line steamers and gone to the Hoffman House, where John F. Gaynor for more than two years has resided. At the proper time I believe that Greene and Gaynor will be in New Orleans or San Francisco ready to sail for Nicaragua."

The sequel to his story is the disappearance of the chief defendants in the conspiracy case and the announcement from Washington that the treaty with Nicaragua which was concluded in 1871 will terminate

Washington that the treaty with Nicaragua which was concluded in 1871 will terminate on April 24 of this year. It contained a provision that it might be terminated on six months' notice, and the State Department was notified on Oct. 24 last that a termination was desired. The time expires, therefore, on April 24.

Archibald McKaig of the Fourth precinct, Jersey City, gave warning yesterday that if there is any music at the services of St. John's German Evangelical branch Sunday school in Becker's Hall, 141 Jackson avenue, this afternoon, he will arrest somebody. SHIPBOARD BOER DEBATE. Other Britons on the St. Paul Tell the Vicar of Exton He's a Traitor. The Rev. R. C. Fillingham, vicar of Exton England, author of a pamphet entitled "Christ in London," and a radical orator and opponent of the Boer war, arrived yesterday by the steamship St. Paul from Southampton and Cherbourg.

On the yoyage the discussion of the attitude of England toward the Boers got so warm that the orators decided to fight to a finish in the stateroom of Henry F Gillig, who acted as referee. The question was "Should the United States Intervene in the Boer War?"

Mr. W. A. Gavin, who represents a London sporting club, presided. He said that he considered the proceedings of the Rev. Mr. Fillingham to be traitorous and calculated to prolong the war. "In a crisis like the present," Mr. Gavin said, "every Englishman ought to support his country.

Mr. Fillingham declared that his object and that of his supporters, among whom he reckoned about a third of the workingmen of England, was peace, honorable and enduring; not a peace that would leave in South Africa a deathless sense of wrong and would be an eternal drain on the re-sources of the empire. That would mean the maintenance of an enormous garrison and consequent weakness should foreign complications arise. The peace Mr. Filling-ham said he wanted was the sort that would "make our combatants of to-day our brothers to-morrow." This could be se-cured by giving the Boers a modified form of independence, respecting their senti-ment of nationality. Mr. Fillingham said the would address meetings in the United surrounded by hundreds of angels waving States and endeavor "to form a party within palms. There were also many others, the bosom of both parties to work for the independence of the Boers."

H. Stuyvesant Dudley of New York referred to the clergyman as "traitorous," and said to him: "You ought in any case to support your country."

John B. McCormack of Milwaukee said

John B. McCormack of Milwaukee said that, from the business point of view of an American, South Africa could be better developed by the British than by the Boers and, therefore, he was for the British. Walter Gregory of Minneapelis said he was opposed to America interfering in foreign affairs. Mr. Fillingham said he considered it

Inspector Brooks has not yet reported to Police Commissioner Partridge on the charges that are to be preferred against Capt. Halpin of the Church street station for failing to suppress policy shops in his precinct that were raided by agents of the anti-policy society. Col.
